fib symposium 2017

Cooperation of Belgian & Dutch Concrete Societies

Event

The Betonvereniging (Concrete Association) and its sister organisation, the Belgian Betongroepering (Concrete Group), will organize in cooperation with the Aachen University the fib symposium 2017 from 12 to 14 June 2017.

Who attends?

This international symposium will be attended by the fine fleur of the international world of concrete, including experts from more than 40 countries. There will be an exhibition, a programme of top-quality readings, and special concrete-related themes. The symposium is important for anyone who wants to learn all about the latest developments in concrete within one or a few days.

The theme of the symposium will be: "High tech concrete: Where technology and engineering meet!"

Where?

MECC Maastricht: the European city

The event will be held in the MECC in Maastricht. This location underlines the international character of the symposium.

Setting

Apart from some 60 internationally well-known professors around the globe, professors Dick Hordijk, Theo Salet and Joost Walraven from the Netherlands will take part in the symposium. And, in addition to Professor Luc Taerwe from the Belgian Betongroepering, Professor Josef Hegger from the University of Aachen will also be actively involved in the preparations. Therefore we expect strong participation from Belgium and Germany (in particular Nordrhein-Westfalen).

Why sponsoring?

The event will be the place to be where the latest developments in the field of concrete will be shared. Furthermore it will be an opportunity to expand your network in Europe.

It is the opportunity to profile your company as a highly developed firm which is involved in cutting edge technology.
